Officers and Soldiers of the Army.

Our mighty chief has fallen—Abraham aged to celebrate a national occasion, in, of all places in the world, Char eston! And Our mighty chief has fallen-Abrahan of treason has been reached and passedand a pang of anguish has swept over our country from ocean to ocean, like a wave of woe. Tongue cannot express the grief that weighs down the spirit and presses on every heart that throbs for liberty. The mighty intellect and changeless will that has guided us in safety through storm-clouds of war and seas of blood, into sight of the heven of peace, has left us forever. But soldiers, his work was done-nobly done-done so as to last

The 14th of April saw your beautiful city holding high carnival of joy. The 15ththat terrible 15th—you were in mourning— your hearts were palsied with horror—the on that heaped-up fort. It rises suddenly out of the water, having the appearance of a vast brick-kiln that has, tumbled in on savior of your lovely city was stricken, stricken by accursed treason—dead. Well saving the city—that remains to show at all stricken by accursed treason—dead. Well might you hang your balconies, your doors and windows with funeral emblems of woe. There is erected in the heart of a weeping nation, a monument that shall endure after breast and markle have crumbled the city—that remains to show at all what was the form of this fort. All the rest of it, as it seemed to our eyes then, was but a heap of mortar and brick, battered, and sloping down into the water, in as shapeless and confused a mass as is formed by the stones that fall from the Palisades, and lie heaped up at the foot of the city—that remains to show at all what was the form of this fort. The Wealth of North Carolina. Northern enterprise and Northern capial will soon have a new and profitable field in North Carolina. On either side of the rail-road from the ocean to one hundred miles inland, stretch the dense forests of turpentine. The trees need but tapping and the turpentine flows. Rosin and tar are but the lees of the pungent terebethina. Striking turpentine will be as profitable as striking oil for a few years to come. The indications are above the surface, and are assuredly sure. From Wilmington, too, rich and extensive turpentine tracts stretch away for miles and miles. Where the turpentine region ceases the cotton country begins. Gins and presses, all the implements of the royal plant are here. The soil is adapted to the growth of the fluffy staple; enterprising cultivators alone are needed.

The mineral wealth of the State is most abundant in the counties of Randolph, Guilford and Chatham. These counties were the noted Union counties of the State in the day when rebellion was at its height. Among the inhabitants are a goodly num-ber of Quakers. Indeed all of the persua-sion of Friends in North Carolina may be soin of Friends in North Carolina may be said to reside in these three counties. Albeit the mineral wealth hidden in this locality, the soil is not by any means sterile, on the contrary the land is arable to a remarkable degree. Water power abouds, and nature favors the development of the fich mineral resources of this region.—[Cor. Phil. Inquirer. Phil, Inquirer.

THE SECRETARY OF WAR, Mr. Stanton—the lion of this Administra-tion, whose courage never quailed; whose far-seeing wisdom, and moral resoluteness, and wonderful administrative ability, will place him among the very foremost men to whom history will do honor—Mr. Stanton invited, besides various gentlemen connected with the State and National Governments, not a few who, for various reasons, it was thought courteous and fit should be present. A company, therefore, of some eighty, and a few more, embarked upon the good steamer "Arago," Captain Gadsden—a company in some sense select, and vet very miscellaneous—a company that in other days could never have mingled. It was a part of the marvel of that voyage to ee such men as Gen. Anderson, and Gen. see such men as Gen. Anderson, and Gen. Dix, and Gen. Townsend, and Judge Swayne, and Judge Holt, walking and talking familiarly with William Lloyd Garrison, George Thompson, and Henry Ward Beecher, [laughter] as they all voyyet, it was a company most agreeable, who have left each other, now separated, I think, without one unpleasant thought, and with many pleasant memories and grateful re-

FORT SUMTER.

As we rounded into the harbor, all eyes were strained to see the object of our pil-grimage—Fort Sumter. At last we beheld it, with strange trembling. For myself, I know not what that muteness may come from of the soul, that sense of being almost petrified, with which one looks upon a long desired sight, and, from very excess of feeling, has no feeling. So I looked on those shores, on those batteries, and chiefly

But citizens and soldiers of the Union, let us over the grave of the saviour of our country, of our great chieftain, erect a bow he been parted and divided among the fleet. And, although there were the men-of-war, that bore silent blunders, although there were the minitors, lying tur-tle-like on the surface of the sea, I confess that the strangest, and, in many respects, the most interesting, sight that I saw there was that little clay-colored craft, the Plan-ter, which the black man, Robert Small, right in the feac of the forts of the enemy, right in the face of the forts of the enemy brought out of the harbor, and delivered to our blockade fleet, which he now commands, and on which he brought such an assembly of colored people from Charleston to behold their flag, as I think never was put on any craft before. They covered the lower deck, they were heaped up on it. They covered the upper decks, they were heaped up on them. If you have ever seen a Western pigeon-roost, where trees were six deep with pigeons on each particular branch, then you can form some conception of how the Planter looked. If there was anything on that occasion which was full of inwardness, of silence, of joyful solem of inwardness, of sience, of joyful solemity unexpressed, it was the seeing these creatures. I did not see their physical aspects. Within their dusky forms I beheld new men in the resurrection of liberty. It was the joyful morning of freedom; and I could not resist the impulse to wave to them, alone, my hat, in cheers, as it were. Their being there was the most significant fact, to me, of all the facts of that occa-

THE EVENT OF ALL EVENTS.
Then came the event of all events. From Then came the event of all events. From a leathern bag, in which it had been brought, Hart, who, when the flag had been shot down, hoisted it again in the fierce battle of Fort Sumter: Hart, who had been a faithful servant of Gen. Anderson, and a faithful servant of Gen. Anderson, and a faithful soldier as well; Hart, who had been selected to care for and keep the flag, and to prepare it on this occasion—from a leathern bag he now drew forth that precious ensign. I had scarcely thought, except in general, that it would be a glorious thing to see the old flag float again; and, when he began to draw it forth from its hiding-place, I looked upon it with a sort of uncurious eye, rather wondering if it was uncurious eye, rather wondering if it was torn or fretted away, or if the breeze would find that its fiber was decayed. I scarcely knew what was in me or about me. But, when one corner had been attached, and another corner had been attached, and Gen. Anderson had been handed the cords, and he had begun to draw them, and the flag had gone up some ten or twelve feet, I ilag had gone up some ten or twelve feet, I looked up; and if the heavens had broken, and poured down their influences on me, I could not have been so surcharged, and so borne away, as I was in that strange and surpassing moment. For, as in a vision, the whole round circle of events came up before me. There went up that old flag; and in a second sight I saw by it men in times past, and in times to come. I dissolved, and cried like a child, like a woman, or rather, like a man. And I had company, for tears were falling on every side. Up it went, and up, brighter and clearer and nobler, till its stars iouched the very top. Women fainted for excess of feelvery top. Women fainted for excess of feeling. Men clasped each other in convulsions of emotion. Many prayed. Some wept. And when the flag had reached its highest point, and a few words had been solemnly and fitly spoken by Gen. Anderson, he retired some stops beek. It wes solemnly and fitly spoken by Gen. Anderson, he retired some steps back. It was public, and sent to, Major General T. J. Wood, a splendid sword, with the following inscription:

PRESENTED TO MAJOR GENERAL THOS. J. WOOD,
As a Token of Regard and Esteem, by his Fellow-Citizens of Dayton.
On the rich silver-cased sheath is inscribed the names of the several battles in which General Wood took part, as follows:
Shiloh, Perryville, Stone River, Chickamanga, Orchard Knob, Mission Ridge, Resaca, Pickett's Mills, Kenesaw Mountain, Lovejoy Station, Franklin and Nashville.

solemnly and fitly spoken by Gen. Anderson, and set to Major General wood as splendid sword, with the following maiden thought that I had called her, when I said, "Daughter Jour that I had called her, when I said, "Daughter Jour the sweeter scene was ever witnessed than that which transpired when his wife clasped him, and fell upon his neck, weeping, and his children gathered about him. To me it was doubly beautiful, because of the words that I had called her, when I said, "Daughter Jour that I had call father raise their country's flag, and witness these ceremonies, all the influences that can be brought to bear upon them will never make them false to that old flag."

[Applause.] So he consecrated them; and God will ratify the consecration, and hold them firm.

BEV. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

Most remarkable was the speech of Judge Advocate Holt, a Kentuckian, who was bred in the midst of slavery, and who has not been known to be an emancipationist, at least with pronounced zeal, hitherto. Could you have heard him speak that might; could you have heard what he said that night about slavery, its abettors, and its doom; could you have witnessed his zeal that night; and heard him enumerate the penalties which he would have inflicted upon the initial leaders of this rebellion, you would have thought yourself in strange-company indeed. JUDGE HOLT. company indeed.

EVERY INCH A MAN.

Betimes the next morning, which was bright and cheery, I betook myself to a surrey of the city. As I issued from the house, forth and back walked a sable sentinel before my brother's door. He seemed every inch a man; and, for aught that I could see, he was as faithful as if he had been white, and worn his country's uniform.

Right opposite, in the square, stood the city arsenal, builded on purpose to defend the city against colored men in insurrection. Now it is occupied by a regiment of colored men, defending the city against white men in insurrection [Laughter.]

SO MAY EVERY MAN STARVE. SO MAY EVERY MAN STARVE.

The Government gives rations twice a week to those who are too poor to live without charity. And there, in a throug, perhaps numbering two or three hundred, were all colors, all ages, and all conditions—the shabby, the shabby genteel, the genteel, the old, the young, those that had been rich, those that had always been poor, the black, and the white—all on the same errand, and some wrangling and poof, the black, and the white—all on the same errand, and some wrangling and contending. They went into a building at one door, received their ration, and passed out at another door. It is a day of humiliation when the old white population of Charleston are fed, together with the blacks, by the United States Government, as paupers—paupers because they would not be patriots. So may every man'starve to the end of his days, who lifts his hand against this dear old country! [Great applause.] plause.]

SLAVES VS. GOV. AIKEN. The next day I heard an account of Gov. Aiken from his own slaves, and I confess that it placed the matter in a very differ-ent light. And, when I had listened to their story of his treatment of them, and their feelings toward him, and his story of his treatment of them, and his feelings toward them, I felt that I had the whole subject rounded out. Nor was I any more in love with slavery than I had been. We shall never know what slavery is, until the slaves tell us.

that records one single name—CALHOUN.
That is the record of the rebellion. All this great crop of war is from the dragontoothed doctrines that were sowed by the hands of that dangerous man. Born in 1782, he died in 1850. He graduated at Yale College. It was of him that Dr. Dwight said, after a discussion with him on the origin of political power. "That is pournal itself. There can he no doubt the journal itself. There can he no doubt that to this gentleman's rare capacity is due its great success. Now that Mr. Bennett has almost retired from active participation in its management, Mr. Hudson's retirement would, it is believed here, ruin the paper.

Gov. Hahn of Louisiana has written a leton the origin of political power, "That young man has talent enough to be President of the United States," Because he was not made President, he determined to destroy the United States, such was his malign ambition. He studied law in my own party a State spending significant process. tion. In that department he had not, perhaps, his equal on the continent. A singular power he had over young men. It may be said that every young man of any eminence or power in South Carolina was a disciple of Mr. Calhoun. A striking example of his wonderful personal influence was afforded in the case of a young man, in 1832, that was strongly opposed to secession till he went to visit Mr. Calhoun, after which he was flaming for secession. By this magician he was transformed in a single interview. The effect of his mind upon the minds of young men was marvelous. And there, now, stands his monument brooding over his dust. And a ruined, shattered city, demoralized and destroyed, is a commentary on his doctrines. Already vandal hands were beginning to chip off the marble, to bring back pebbles as memorials. What on earth should a man want a memorial of Calhoun for? And if one wanted it, what must be the measure of that want that would lead him to dese-crate a grave, and break down gravestones, crate a grave, and or-ak down gravestones, that he might have something to put on his mantel-piece, or on his cabinet-shelf, and say, "I stole that from the grave of Calhoun?"

A BLACK DAUGHTER OF ZION. And yet, there was one church in which ministered myself. It was my privilege to preach in Charleston on Sunday morning, a week ago, at Zion Church—the African church. About three thousand people were there. Enough of them were white were there. Enough of them were white to say that there were white people there. There were a number of officers, and a few strangers present; but the great body of the house was filled with the intelligent part of the colored population of Charles ton. I know not that I shall ever preach with such sensations again. I have preached about slaves and slavery; but to stand in the midst of such a great audience, and feel, "Here they are, and they are now come to life and to light," struck me through with such sensations as I never had before. And, according to the meas ure that God gave me, I preached the Gos One little incident was peculiarly charming to my feelings. I gave out, for the second hymn,

"Daughter of Zien, from the dust
Exalt thy fallen head."
You will find it to be an almost perfect description of Charleston itself. There sat, four or five pews in front of me, seven or eight old men that attempted to choir it— for they were going to be respectable, and sing as white jolks do. I did not go to hear them sing so: I went to hear black folks sing in their own way, and was thirsty for the old negro melodies, the wild, walling, half-chant tunes which I had heard so much about. But I got only church music in the first singing. And I was obliged to line out the words. I repeated again, "Daughter of Zion, from the dust "Daughter of Zion, from the dust Exalt thy fallen head," and looked down to see if they were going to sing; and, while these men were getting ready, there broke out on my left the voice of a young maiden, apparently twelve or thirteen years of age, in one of their characteristic plantation melodies. She went through the first line before another voice was heard. Everybedy lookshe went through the hist line before another voice was heard. Everybody looked at everybody in surprise. On the next line a few voices joined hers. And on the next about a third of the audience took up next about a third of the audience took up the hymn and sang it to the end. I know not whether this young maiden thought that I had called her, when I said, "Daugh-ter of Zion" [Laughter.] but the style of singing in which she led off was just what I wanted to hear.

ple, and no distinction is made by the military authorities between black and white. The schools are free, and everything about them is a series of the schools. them is impartial.

"GOOD GOD! THE PRESIDENT IS KILLED."
We had returned to Beaufort, and were on the eve of going upon shore to enjoy a social interview, before setting out for Sa-vannah, when a telegram came to Senator Wilson from Gen. Gilmore. As the boy that brought it passed me, I jocosely asked him some questions about it. Presently Senator Wilson came out of his cabin, much agitated, and said, "Good God! the President is killed!" and read the dispatch. It was not grief, it was sickness that I felt.
In one half-hour we had wheeled upon our keel, and were plowing our way back to Hilton Head, whither we had telegraph-ed that we might immediately leave for the ed that we might immediately leave for the North. We could see no more sights. We had no more heart for pleasure. The heavens seemed dark. Nothing was left, for the hour, but God, and his immutable providence, and his decrees. I leaned on them, and was strengthened. But oh, the sadness of that company, and our nights' and our days' voyaging back! We knew nothing but this: that the President had been assassinated. All the rest was reserved for sassinated. All the rest was reserved for our coming into the harbor. We hoped to our coming into the narbor. We noped to have returned with great cheer, and to have come up this noblest bay of the world to see it lined with tokens of joy and beauty; but, instead of that, on a dreary morning, drenched, chilled, and sea-sick, we came creeping up the bay under a cloudy sky, fit symbol of our nation's loss and hetook our.

symbol of our nation's loss, and betook our-selves to our several homes.

Men, brethern, God has dealt very hardly with us. He has taken many, many dear ones from your side and mine; but now he has taken the highest and the chiefest man in the nation. Yet, blessed be his name, he that dwelt in the burning bush is our God. He that dwells in the storm is our God. He that sitteth King upon the flood is cur God. And the Judge of all the earth cannot but do right. And when the counsels that are inscrutable shall be unrolled, and eternity shall stand and interpret, you and I, and all good and holy men, shall lift up our voices in heaven, to say, "Bless-ing and honor, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, for ever and ever."

The New York correspondent of the Lonon Morning Star says: Mr. James Gordon Bennett is over seventy; and still, though hale and hearty, he comes rarely, I am told, to the Herald office, leaving to Mr. Frederick Hudson the eatire management of the journal. This gentleman has been the working editor and manager of the paper for over twenty years.
He is one of those extraordinary personages who give themselves up body and mind to the accomplishment of one purpose, and allow nothing short of death to stay their efforts. For more than a quarter of a century Mr. Hudson has been the manager of the Herald—its guardian. Nothing escapes his notice; no fact is too trivial for his personal attention. Day and night he may be found at his desk, ready CALHOUN'S GRAVE.

I entered that graveyard, not to read the different inscriptions on the monuments of old families of Charleston, but simply to look, with a sad eye, upon a marble slab that greater as the cannot even for a short holiday leave it; and in this community he is well known as is the journal itself. There can be no doubt that greater as the cannot even for a short holiday leave it; and in this community he is well known as is the journal itself. There can be no doubt that greater as the cannot even for a short holiday leave it; and in this community he is well known as is the journal itself. There can be no doubt the this greater as the cannot even for a short holiday leave it.

Gov. Hahn of Louisiana has written a letter to Gen. Sherman transmitting resolu-tions of thanks from the Legislature to him and his army for their great achievements. In his reply Gen. Sherman avows the strong faith he always held in the permanency and strength of the Government, and that he could never be made to believe that our destiny would yield to the guidance "of the tew discontented demagogues of the South or its conceited cotton planters and negrohad always regarded as a bargain, and that Slave property was to be respected at the North without going into its abstract mer-its or defects. Had the Southern people abided by the laws and the tribunals he would have maintained their rights; but when they ignored the contract and appealed to war he held that he was no longer bound in law or honor to respect that "obnoxious species of property." When the war is over he believed that wise men would adjust the affairs of the country "so that slaves will never again he bought or that slaves will never again be bought or sold." The letter of Gen. Sherman is dated April 5.

The first case of emancipation under the President's Proclamation was that of three negro boys escaping from Kirby Smith's army, who appeared before Lieut. Colonel Spies, Military Governor of the towns of Covington and Newport, Kentucky, September 22, 1822, 2013, 1929, heading interests. tember 23, 1862, and were by him given

Dr. Belt and the Union Press.

[For the Union Press.]
My old friend Dr. Bell seems incensed at my mentioning his name in connection with the Union Press. I ask the Doctor' rdon. But I reckon he won't deny that he has been a frequent editorial contributor to the Union Press. Whatever the Doctor's relations are just now with the UNION PRESS, I felt so well satisfied that he frequently wrote editorially for the UNION PRESS, hat I didn't hesitate to mention him PRESS, or "of the Union Press."

MARCO. General Philip Kearney was the only American officer who was ever decorated with the Legion of Honor by the Emperor

Our readers are aware that soon after the thirty-first of March last, we announced by telegraph the decease of Samuel Bruch, at Memphis, Tenn., on that day. The terrible national calamity which soon thereafter befel our nation the assassination of President Lincoln diverted us, temporarily, from our intention to say a few words in respect to Captain Bruch. We cannot, however, forego, even at this late period, to make known certain peculiarities of the subject of our sketch, as they furnish an examplar which may not be without its effects upon the youth of our city and State. Samuel Bruch was born near Canton, Ohio, on the 30th of December, 1831. His parents were originally from Pennsylvania, and removed to Dalton, Ohio, during the ex-On his attaining the age of thirteen years diction over his case, and that a resort should be had to the civil courts. INCOME RETURNS BY TAX-PAYERS,-From the decision herewith published, it will be seen that tax-payers cannot get their income returns ready any too soon. Delay may render them liable to the twenty-five per cent, penalty. The blanks are now ready, and the assistant assessors are at their posts, but after the present month the lists will be made up for return to the collector, and tay-novers will be wise to the collector, and tax-payers will be wise to get their returns made up in time. Every tax-payer should take care to protect him self, and he can only do this by making out his return in the proper time. TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF IN-TERNAL REVENUE, WASHINGTON, March 30, 1865.—Sir: In reply to yours of the 25th inst. I have to say, that the law requires that every person liable to an annual tax shall make his return on or before the first Mondreig My.

Monday in May.

Immediately after that date it is the duty of the Assistant Assessor to call upon all persons who have failed to make return, and if any such person is found at home, or at his usual place of business, he must be prepared to furnish the return to the Assistant at once, or he will be liable to as-sessment, with the penalty of twenty-five er cent. In this case the ten days notice not required.

If any tax payer is absent from home or from his usual place of business, when the Assistant calls for his return, the ten day's notice must be given, as the presumption is that the return is ready and would be delivered if the party were at home.

You will see, therefore, that it is unnecessary for Assistant Assessors to fill up the notice, when the blank is left with a taxpayer before the first Monday in May, and the same is the case with those delivered to tax-payers who are found at home after subsequent to the first Monday in May, in all cases where the notice is necessary as a precedent to the assessment by the Assistant Assessor.

Very respectfully,
E. A. Rollins,
Deputy Commissioner.
W. Wilcox, Assessor, Gardiner, Maine.

A sad case has just come to our no tice of a worthy citizen in an adjoining county, who has met with every sort of abuse and outrage at the hands of prowling bands of guerrillas. It was in the fall of 1863, engaged as a colporteur, he was first attacked by these desperadoes, afterwards at his home, till it came to the knowledge of one of the bands, under the notorious Martin, that he was in the service of the se cret police, when the hunting process com menced, and has been persistenly pursued by his persecutors till now. But for the treacnery of a false friend, he might not

During all this time, his secret and disined services for his country, have been of vast advantage to the Government. Hunted through Shelby, Nelson, Anderson, and other counties, compelling him to seek refuge from home in the woods, hills, and hollows, he had to escape for his life from Jesse's band for having acted spy in entering his camp. He and his cohorts pursued him so close that he was compelled flee with his little family to county. There he was discovered by some straggling fellows from Sue Mundy's gang, and his troubles were renewed, when again he escaped for his life to this city. Once more, believing it same to return home, he more, believing it same to return home, he made the attempt, but was driven by Davis' and Chase's gang rope in hand to hang him, carbine to shoot him down, till, leaving his family to make their way to him as best they could, he reached this city a few days since. His family have just arrived, but with the loss of everything and of course destitute.

For the valuable services rendered in the way of information to the Government. made known to the commander of this dis-trict, and the known ability the gentleman of the departments, it is a proper to the departments, it is a proper to the departments, it is a proper to the has so richly earned while in defense of his country. A New Hotel.-Willard's is the name of new hotel recently opened at the corner of Center and Jefferson streets. It is a well known fact that the hotel accommodations of the city have been insufficient for some time. Mr. Willard who is a public spirited centlemen felt that such was the creament. gentleman, felt that such was the case and has fitted up a hotel that can compare fahas fitted up a hotel that can compare fa-yorably with any in the city. He has spared no expense in fitting up the house with all the modern conveniences, and besides has secured the services of gentlemen who "know how to keep hotel." Mr. Willard has had considerable experience in this par-ticular branch of business. Persons visit-ing his hotel will be sumptuously enter-tained.

DANGEROUS SYMPTOMS .- We are informed that on the arrival of the guerrilla who has assumed the name of Quantrell at the barracks prison Saturday, he was found to be in possession of a beautiful boquet, to which was attached a card bearing the following inscription:

"Compliments to Miss Maggie Frederick and Sallie Lovell to Mr. Quantrell." and Sallie Lovell to Mr. Quantrell."

This was presented to the distinguished bandit, we suppose, as a testimonial of his valor. A strange way some people have of showing their loyalty.

The notorious Dick McCann, for ose head Gen. Rosecrans offered a large reward, and who gave the Union army more trouble than any other partizan ranger in Tennessee, delivered himself up last week at Chattanooga. He has taken the oath and will return to his home a few miles from Nashville.

INTERNATIONAL BILLIARD SALOON .- A very large crowd was present last evening at the opening of this beautiful saloon. The occasion will long be remembered by the billiard players of our city. A carom game between Messrs. McDevitt, of Indinapolis, and Tieman, of Cincinnati, was watched with great interest. Tieman was not in condition to play well, having just arisen from a bed of sickness. McDevitt played well and won the game by about 145 points, making a run at the close of 206. "fancy" shots of both players were loudly applauded.

Lieut, Gen. U. S. A. Washington, May 15.—On Saturday it was moved if the record created no objection on the part of the Judge Advocate or the counsel for any or all of the accused, the presence of several witnesses need not be considered of material necessity. Mr. Aiken, assistant counsel for Mrs. Surratt, expressed his willingness to accede to such an arrangement, except in the case of Welchman, who he desired to be present, however, that the witness— Mr. Johnson, cousel for Mrs. Surratt, this morning when the whole of the testimony given by Mr. Welchman had been spread upon the records of the court, applied to be permitted to ask of him some questions be-fore he retired. ourt took recess After recess Mr. J. W. Loyd was recalled and asked if he could identify the carbines, if shown him, as the ones referred to in his previous testimony. Witness—The one with cover on I do not recognize; I do not think the cover looks like the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the other looks like the one I seen, I recognize the fixture for breech loading, which attracted my attention, and I examined it. I testified in my last examination that I would be seen to be seen the same of the same; and the same of the same; it was a kind of gray cloth, the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the other looks like the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the other looks like the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the other looks like the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the other looks like the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the other looks like the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the other looks like the same; it was a kind of gray cloth; the same is a ki tion that I wasn't certain whether I carried the bundle given me by Mrs. Surrat, up stairs or not. I cannot now recollect distinctly, but think I laid it on the table in the dining room. By Judge Holt—You are sure that it was the same bundle that you examined here?

Answer—Yes sir I am sure it was the same. By Mr. Aiken—Did I understand you to say you were in liquor at the time you had this conversation with Mrs. S.?

Answer—I was somewhat in liquor, and I think I told you on Saturday. And on that account is it that you are at fault in your testimony, and wish to make explanations? Ans.—I was not positive whether I carried the bundle up the stairs or not, the question was unexpected, if I had expected it I might have recollected more distinctly in my former testimony.

Testimony of Mary Vanline, examined by Judge Holt—Do you reside in the city of Washington? I do, at No. 240 G street, Do you keep rooms for rent? I do. Will you look at the prisoners at the bar and state whether in the month of February last you saw any of them, and if so, which? Two of those gentlemen had rooms at my house—Arnold and O'Laughlin. What time in February did they take rooms? As near as I can [recollect it was on the the 10th; I cannot state positively the date. Did you know J. W. Booth in his lifetime? Did you know J. W. Booth in his lifetime? I knew him by his coming to my house to see the gentlemen who had rooms. Did he or not come very often to see the prisoners, O'Laughlin and Arnold? Yes, frequently. Would he remain for a good while? As a general thing he would go into their room, and I could see nothing further of him. Did these prisoners leave the city and return several times? They left on Saturday to go to their homes as I understood in Baltimore.

Do you know whether Booth accompani-

They told you his name was J. Wilkes Booth? Yes, Arnold did. I inquired who he was; he said J. W. Booth. Did he call ne was; ne said J. W. Booth. Did he call for them frequently and not find them in? Yes, some times. Did he manifest much anxiety to see them? Frequently when they were away he would call three or four times before they would return. He would seem very anxious to see them. Would he leave messenges for them? Sometimes he leave messages for them? Sometimes he would request that if they came before he called, to say that they would find him at the stable. Sometimes he'd go into their room and write a note. Look at the photograph graph now shown you and say if you recog nize it as the man you call Booth? I do. I recognize it as Booth, but it is very poor. Do you remember the last time Booth played in this city about the 18th or 20th of March? Yes. Did these prisoners present you with complimentary tickets for the play that night? Yes; I expressed a wish to see him and O'Laughlin gave me tickets. Did there seem to be any difference in the intithere seem to be any difference in the inti-macy of his association with these two men; if so, with which was he most intimate? I New Secretary of the Interior. It so, with which was no most inclinate; I can not say; he would sometimes inquire for one and sometimes the other; although I think more for O'Laughlin. Did you ever in their room? I ever see any arms in their room? I saw a pistol once, and only once? Did you remember at any time of seeing a man call, a very rough-looking person, a laboring man or mechanic? Not a laboring man, there was a man who used to come sometimes. I think he passed one night with them, from his coming out early night with them, from his coming out early in the morning. Do you know his name? No, I would know him if I saw him, he was what you would call a respectable looking mechanic, not what you would call a gentleman. Could you describe him at all? Not very minutely—his hair looked as if it had been exposed to the weather. Do you recognize him among the prisoners? No. Did these prisoners seem to have any No. Did these prisoners seem to have any business transactions with Booth, and if so of what character? They said they were in the oil trade. Did they seem to have an ex tensive correspondence; did many letters come to them?

(Special to Western Associated Pro Washington, May 15.—Mr. Loyd after recess to-day was recalled. He identified one of the carbines produced in court as the one that was left at his house by Mrs. S. Marie Vantine was called and testified that she lived at 240 G street, and that Ar-nold and O'Laughlin took rooms at her house in February last. Booth frequently came there to see them, and sometimes on calling appeared very anxious to see them. Arnold tald her it was J. W. Booth, and she identified the photagraph as Booth's. Booth called for O'Laughlin more than for Arnold; both men told her they were in erested with Booth in oil. Did not see him again till evening. O'L. went to Baltimore on the evening of day, after the assassination. His brother said they would be after him, on account of his intimacy with Booth. At the time the party went down to Baltimore on the Thursday, it was all arranged that they should go back on Friday; saw no difference in the conduct of O'Laughlin from his usual appearance; he thought it was liquor which caused them to stay later than they meant to. They reached Balti-more on Saturday. O'Laughlin's brother told him O'Laughlin's party had been look-ing for him, and would probably arrest

Witness remembered and he remembered that he remarked he didn't want to be arrested at home as it would be the death of his mother, and announced his intention of going elsewhere. Witness testified while in Washington Thursday night they were together most of the time and he did not know of his going elsewhere that night. O.—I understand you to say on Saturday you went with Mrs. Surratt the first time on the Tuesday before the assassination in O'Laughlin, and he hated him. On Friday he was to see Booth; he did not know whether he saw him or not, and could not

R. J. Stregg testified that he had known O'Laughlin for several years, and saw him with Booth early in April. Saw him at one time talking with another person whom he thought that one of the prisoners was the person who was talking with Booth and from her, because I copied off the instrument. David Stanton testified he saw O'Laughlin at the house of the Secretary of War the before the murder, and asked him what his business was, and he inquired for the Secretary of War.

Decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

New York, May 15.—The Assessors of Internal Revenue have been acting under a misapprehension concerning deductions. The following letter to a citizen will set them right: TREASURY DEPARTMENT, INTERNAL REV-ENUE, WASHINGTON, May 11.—Sir: Your letter of May 2d, in regard to the deductions from income, is received. I reply that where the owner of property occupies the same he is well entitled to deduct repairs, taxes, insurance and interest on incum-brances on such property as if the same brances on such property as if the same were rented and produced income, and he has the same right even if the property is Very respectfully, Very respectfully, E. The Indiana Conspirators---Different Opinion--Davis to be Tried First for High Treason. New York, May 15.—The Post's Washington special says the prevailing impression among officials here is that Davis will be tried for high treason before the United States Court of this district, and that he will not be arraigned before the military commission now trying the conspirators. Davis to be Taken Directly to Washing-ton--His Trial to Take Place Immedi-ately--Fositive Evidence Against Him. WASHINGTON, May 15 .- Jeff. Davis will reach Washington the middle or latter part of the week. He will at once be placed on trial, probably before the Commission now in session. The circumstantial evidence implicating him in the conspiracy is becoming more complete. Positive testimony from Richmond will not be wanting as skillful detectives are unravelling the movements of Surrat, who was in Richmond shortly before the murder, and had more than one interview with Davis.

National Bank Circulation.

New York, May 15.—The Tribune's Washington special says it is efficially stated that the circulation of the National Banks amount to $123,690,000. Massachusetts has 176 banks, with $31, 513,730 in circulation. New York has 172, with $19,461,750; Pennsylvania, has 182, with $25,100,590, and Ohio, 125, with $10,-

New York, May 10.—The Commercial's special says the brewerey seizures at Dubuque, Iowa, for the evasion of the revenue tax on whisky are more extensive than was reported. The firm of Sturges & Sons had advanced $450,000 on the whisky of the single establishment of Bomberg.

A delegation from New York and Boston are urging a reduction on government rates of interest 5 per cent.

The Conspiracy Court Martial.

WASHINGTON, May 15 .- The witne examined this afternoon on the Court Mar-tial showed the intimacy of Booth, Arnold and O'Laughlin. Mr. Cox, for the defense, objected to the whole of this evidence on the ground that the mere fact of intimacy was not evidence of conspiracy. The Judge sinultaneously, but fortunately the wind Advocate General said they had fully established the intimacy of the parties in Washington, and he simply proposed to show that the intimacy existed in Balti-burnt district. show that the intimacy existed in Balti-more. The court overruled the objection, but ordered it to be put on the record.

It appears from the testimony of David Stanton that on the night of the illumination, the 13th of April, O'Laughlin was prowling around the house of the Secretary of War, but, having no business there, he was ordered out. General Grant was in the parlor at the time.

The court remained in session till 7 o'clock. A number of witnesses were ex-amined as to the occurrences at the theater on the night of the murder.

Comments of the N. Y. Papers on the Capture of Jeff Davis--Emigration Schemes-Mexican Loan.

New York, May 15.—Commenting on the capture of Jeff Davis, the Tribune hopes he will be tried on the charge of complicity in the murder of President Lincoln. The Times, World, Post and Advertiser think he will be tried for treason and hope it will be done in a civil court. The Herald's Washington special says it is expected within two weeks there will be an offer to our capitalists for the Mexican none to our capitants for the Mexican loan, based on such securities as will recom-mend it as an investment. It has been ascertained that nearly all the emigration schemes now creating so much excitement, are totally unauthorized. It is intimated that some of them have been instituted and managed by the French emissaries with a view to induce French emissaries with a view to induce the Government to prohibit emigration.

The Times' Washington special says instructions have been sent to Gen. Wilson to forward Davis, petticoats and all, to Savannah, and to bring them thence by water to Washington.

Much indignation is expressed here that permission should have been given for a firm of secessionists in Richmond, the former proprietors of the Evening Courier, to take possession of the old Sentinel office, which includes the large printing concernued by the rebel government.

MACAZINE.

A popular Magazine of Religious and Usefel Literature; edited by James M. Sherwood.

HOURS AT HOME is designed to stand among our monthly magazines as the representative of the religious element of American literature. Besides articles on purely religious subjects, it will contain Reviews of Books, Biographical and Hisorical Sketches; Poetry, Notes of Travel, Moral Tales, Papers on Popular Science, and essays upon Miscellaneous Topics. Discarding the trivolous, the irreligiors and corrupting, it will furnish a pure, healthful and instructive literature; it will be animated also by a thoroughly catholic spirit, so that it may belong to the entire American church. In brief, HOURS AT HOME will aim to be what its name indicates a Family Magazine, unexceptionable in all its teachings, elevated in tone and useful; at the same time it will estime to render itself an invaluable aid to the Sunday-school teacher, and a welcome visitor to the study of every

OFFICE OF THE LOUISVILLE UNION PRESS, MONDAY EVENING, May 15, 1865. Busine s to-day has been very limited excepting to the country and the retail trade. The recent order from the ecretary of the Treasury to the Surveyor of the port to issue no more permits, or rather to allow unrestricted shipments to any and all points South, excepting the west side of the lower Mi sissippi, should cause a great increase in our trade and shipments, and no doubt it will wh n fully understood. The market was dull and inactive to-day in all departments, excepting the receipts and sales of leaf tobacco. The market for that staple is active, the receipts and sales heavy and prices higher, The weather was very warm to-day, the thermometer ranging as high as 80, and the river was still swelling a little in the morning, but at a stand in the evening.

There was a very large meeting of merchants and steamboat owners at the Merchants' Exchange to-day to receive the report of a special committee in reference to southwest. SYMPTOMS.

sons find they have a cold, then they have frequent attacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of temperature. In this condition, the ness may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and acrid, afterward thick and adhesive may ensue.

As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are in creased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The se-cretions are offensive, causing a bad breath; the voice thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of smell is essened or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place.

Another common and important symptom of Catarrh is that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the mornlog of a thick or slimy muceus, which has fallen from the head during the night. When this takes place the person may be sure that his disease is on its way to the lungs, and should kee no time in arresting it.

The above are but few of the many Catarrhal symptoms Write for our pamphlet describing fully all symptoms; it will be sent FREE to any address.
